Participants will learn to process the native seeds and make seed pellets by mixing native seeds with clay, soil/compost, and water.

Bring water and a snack and dress in clothes you don't mind getting dirty, or wear an apron. The group will be working indoors and outdoors near the park's nature center.

Family participation is encouraged; however, parents must be present with minors, and it is recommended that participants be at least five years of age.

The initiative to make seed pellets is a proactive step towards ecological restoration. To learn more about the Parks Desert Defender Program, visit <https://www.maricopacountyparks.net/about-us/desert-defenders/>.

Note: If less than three people register for each event, we reserve the right to cancel at least one day before. If canceled, email notifications will go to the registrants.
